Rank Cashier Speculates and Loses -He Speculates to Make Up the Loss and Loses Again-Deficit, $135,000.

ST. PAUL, MINK., September 13.—A visit of Joseph Lockey, United States bank examiner, to Minneapolis, has brought to light a heavy defalcation in the Northwestern national bank of that city. William W. Keen, the guilty person, has been acting cashier of the bank during the absence of the cashier in Europe. When the bank examiner proceeded to count the cash, he found a heavy deficit, whereupon Mr. Keen confessed that he was a defaulter, and could not longer defer expo-sure. Later, he made a fuller confession to H. T. Wells, president of the bank, to whom he stated that he had been engaged in produce speculations in Chicago for a year past, had met heavy loses, and used the funds of the bank to replace them. It is the old story he meant to win back his losses, and replace the money taken, but luck did not turn his way. The whole amount taken from the bank since the operations began is one hun-dred and thirty-five thousand dollars, of which he had lost all but eight thousand dollars. This amount he will return to the bank. He expressed himself ready to endure

Georgetown (Ohio) dispatch to the Cincinnati Enquirer, 14th: "At noon to-day your correspondent heard a rumor that a murder had been committed in Russellville, a quiet village seven miles east of here, and immedi ately started for the scene of the disturbance Upon arriving in Russellville I found the town torn from center to circumference with excitement, and learned that the fact that a murder had been committed within her bor-der was only too true. The facts in the sad affair, which have been carefully gathered, are as follows: The Russellville cornet band gave a festival last night at the schoolhouse which was largely attended by the citizens of the town. Everything passed off pleasantly until about nine o'clock, when the trouble, which resulted in the death of one prominent young man and the arrest of another, arose. George Collins, the man who committed the rash act, is a member of the band, and was sitting eating ice-cream and talking with some ladies, when Lyburn Cropper, the band-leader, approached him, and remarked that they play. Collins paid no attention to the request, when Cropper repeated the order and enforced it by putting his hands on Collins's shoulder, and leading him up to where the lins, according to the testimony, was muttering something, but what he was saying no-body knew. Whatever the words were that passed between them, they angered Cropper, and he remarked that he would knock hell markets abroad as per telegrams received at the cotton exchange yesterday:

Liverpool.—Spots dull; middling uplands, out of Collins, and struck him a blow under the left eye. After being struck, Collins walked across a small platform in the end of the hall, laid down his horn, and, turning, drew a pistol, holding it in both hands, and fired, the ball entering Cropper's right breast about one inch below the collar-bone, and ery, 6 13-32d; September and October delivery, 6 13-32d.

Futures opened at coding and decad herely steady. Largery passing between the first and second ribs, glanced downward and inward toward the spine. Cropper after being shot walked out of the room and then into it again, remark-ing as he entered the door, 'Boys, I am a dead man.' With that remark he fell to the floor and expired. Collins, his slayer, looked upon the body as it lay in death, and ex-claimed, 'My God! I didn't intend to do that!' and left the hall, going to his home, where he remained until this morning when e gave himself up, and is now being guarded by the constable. I tried to interview the prisoner, but he would say absolutely nothing save that he would rather not say anything upon the subject. Both the young men are aged about twenty-nine years, and have always been good friends. Col-lins had evidently been drinking, hence was in a quarrelsome mood. He carries a very black eye, the effects of the blow received from Cropper. To morrow afternoon a preliminary examination will be held, when the full facts in the case will be developed. The victim of the tragedy was a school-teacher by profession, and had his trunk packed for Mount Carmel, Clermont county, at which place he expected to teach this win ter. The advantages which this city can furnish in transportation facilities, in case Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis should also become (not improbable) isolated by rigid quarantines, induces us to adopt this policy, in order to furnish our friends with a more reliable assurance for obtaining their supplies.
